

The Annual Report

1979-80

James Madison University

Across-the-Board Growth Continues

Academic Affairs

—In the fall of the 1979-80 session, 40 new faculty members joined the University bringing the total full-time faculty to around 450. Including administrators and part-time faculty, the University's total faculty numbered around 500.

—After many years of efforts, the B.S. in nursing program received final approval with a fall, 1980, beginning date when some 25 nursing students will enroll.

Other new programs approved to begin in the fall of 1980 were bachelor of business administration degrees in agribusiness management and in economics; bachelor of science degrees in computer science, trade and industrial education, and energy resources management; and a master of fine arts in art.

—Proposals were made to seek a number of additional new degree programs in the near future. These include a B.A. and a B.S. in dance; B.S. in data processing; master in communication arts; master of public administration; certificate for advanced graduate study in counseling; education specialist in reading; and education specialist in special education.

—The University's Army Reserve Officer Training Corps (ROTC) program became an independent unit and was separated from the University of Virginia ROTC program. Nineteen students were commissioned under the program at the May commencement and more than 200 students are now enrolled in the program.

—The Semester in London program began with great success. Twenty-eight JMU students spent the fall semester studying in London under the program and 20 took part in the spring semester program.

—A two-year reaccreditation procedure of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools got under way. Faculty committees were appointed to begin the intensive self-study that is part of the SACS reaccreditation.

Campus Development

—The long-awaited addition to Madison Memorial Library got under way. The $6 million project will double the size of the library and give students desperately-needed study space as well as additional stack space.

—A change in plans was made and the new athletic facility across Interstate 81 from the central campus will become an athletic and convocation center. The new facility, expected to be finished late in 1981, will seat 7,000 and provide adequate seating for concerts and meet the growing demand for attendance at JMU's basketball games.

—The recently-constructed 900-seat baseball stadium was formally named Mauck Stadium in honor of J. Leonard Mauck of Marion who served on the Board of Visitors for ten years.

—A beautiful new center for the School of Education and Human Services opened early in 1980 giving the school the additional classrooms, office space and laboratory facilities which had been needed for several years.

Student Body

—Enrollment reached an all-time high of 8,387 in the fall of 1980. The enrollment represented a 3.8 percent increase over the previous year and marked the 21st consecutive year that enrollment has increased at the University.

—Male-female enrollment remained at 46-54 ratio, the same as in the previous year.

—The average S.A.T. scores for the entering freshmen at JMU reached 1,031—the highest in the institution's history. Average S.A.T. scores have increased each year for the last six years, at a time when national averages are declining. The average S.A.T. score for the entering freshman in 1980 was 74 points higher than the average score in 1973.

—May graduation saw an all-time high of 1,561 graduates. The commencement address was given by Dr. S. John Davis, state superintendent of public instruction.

—A survey showed that the typical freshman at JMU was becoming more conservative and believed more in traditional values. Most students chose to attend JMU because of its academic reputation or to take a special academic program. The great majority of entering freshmen said that JMU was their first choice of colleges.

Athletics

—A delay was encountered in the plans to move the University's football program to Division I-AA in football and the team competed in Division II for the 1979 season. Playing for only the first year with scholarship athletes and facing a difficult schedule that included five Division I opponents, the Dukes finished the season with a respectable 4-6 record and won their last three games of the year.

—The men's basketball team, also facing its toughest schedule ever, finished with an 18-8 record for the third year in a row. The season included JMU's first victory ever over Virginia Commonwealth University, which later participated in the NCAA post-season tournament.

—Because of a misunderstanding of Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women regulations, the JMU women's basketball team was placed on probation for one year. The probation, however, had no effect on recruiting or scheduling and the Duchesses finished the year with a 10-13 record in a rebuilding season.

—The baseball team had an outstanding season, winning the Eastern College Athletic Conference Southern Division title in three straight games at the tournament held at JMU. The team placed third in the Eastern Regional Tournament of the NCAA in Miami, Fla. and finished the season with a 32-13 record.

—JMU was again highly successful in non-revenue sports. To mention a few: the men's, women's and mixed archery teams all finished in the top five in the nation; the women's cross-country team was 19th in the country; the women's field hockey team won the state championship;

Basketball: steady success

the women's gymnastics team was third in the region; and both the lacrosse and swimming teams competed in national tournaments.

Legislative Relations

—By and large, the 1980 session of the Virginia General Assembly was a satisfactory one from the perspective of the University. The legislature approved a 1980-82 biennial budget for the University of $87 million—a 26 percent increase over the 1978-80 budget.

—Although the Governor's proposed budget contained only planning money for the second phase of the addition to Madison Memorial Library, the legislators were convinced to appropriate full funding to complete the project. The total project is some $6 million.

—The General Assembly also approved the following projects which involve revenue bond, but not tax, funds:

—$2 million for a new residence hall to house 150-200 students.

—$1.8 million to expand Madison Stadium by adding some 7,000 permanent seats. This will give the stadium about 13,000 permanent seats, plus 2,000 bleachers, and will accommodate the football team's 1980 move to Division I-AA.

—$1.6 million to construct a conference and meeting center. Originally planned as an addition to the Warren University Union, this center might now be constructed as part of the new residence hall to make a major conference center at the University.

—$500,000 for miscellaneous projects including funds to alter campus facilities to accommodate the handicapped; funds for a campus mall in front of Wilson Hall; and funds to fireproof stairwells in Wilson.

—The University also received permission from the legislature and state agencies to transfer $2 million in previously allocated funds to the athletic-convocation center project and to accept $2.5 million in outside funds for the project. The total funding for the new center is around $6.6 million.

—With the projects approved by the 1980 session of the General Assembly, the University will have some $18.5 million in construction projects under way in 1981.

Board of Visitors

—The University was fortunate in having one of its most active alumni, Emily Lee of Columbia, S.C., named to the Board of Visitors. Governor Dalton appointed Mrs. Lee, secretary of the Alumni Association, to the Board early in 1980.

Special Programs

—The annual Commonwealth Award was presented during a successful Government Day program to Dr. Mack I. Shanholtz, who recently retired after serving 25 years as Virginia's commissioner of health.

—A large number of noted scholars came to campus as part of the annual Fall Arts and Sciences Symposium. A huge crowd in Godwin Hall heard the featured speaker of the symposium, author Isaac Asimov.

—As usual, Parents Day drew an enormous crowd to campus. A new program, "An Afternoon on the Quad," was scheduled and included performances by many student performing groups. Rain curtailed the program but it was still highly successful.

—Homecoming, featuring the largest Homecoming parade in the state, attracted alumni from throughout the nation back to campus.

—Efforts were made to add additional pomp and ceremony to the annual Founders Day program, including a reading from the works of President Madison. Author Virginia Moore delivered the annual James Madison Lecture and the annual alumni awards, previously presented at Homecoming, were given.

—The annual Educator of the Year awards went to Dr. Myron Augsburger, retiring president of Eastern Mennonite College and Ray E. Boyce, long-time school board member from Frederick County. The crowd attending was the largest in the history of the awards program.

—The University sponsored a successful U.S.-China Trade Symposium in Richmond. The seminar was attended by many key businessmen as well as JMU faculty and students. Speakers at the symposium included the Chinese Ambassador to the United States and Gov. John N. Dalton.

The Annual Fund Report for 1979-80

The James Madison University Foundation raised more than $300,000 in private support for the University in 1979-80—less than last year but high for a "normal" year.

JMU Vice President for University Relations Ray V. Sonner explained that the 1978-79 total giving figure of $863,253 was somewhat distorted since it contained two major one-time sources of income that totaled almost $500,000. (These were a gift of land and appreciation on a coin collection given the University.)

The 1979-80 total of $307,849.39 was only slightly less than the 1978-79 total without the two major gifts. The total is up from the 1977-78 income figure of $304,552.

The largest percentage of gifts to the Foundation came from corporations, which gave $111,220 or 36 percent of the total raised. Close behind was the amount from friends of the University—$96,939.84, or 31 percent.

Alumni gifts accounted for 16 percent of the total, $48,620.90, and foundations presented the Foundation $24,597.70, 8 percent of the total. The remaining 9 percent of income the Foundation raised came from JMU faculty and staff, parents of students, members of the JMU Board of Visitors and members of the Foundation board.

Most of the funds disbursed by the Foundation—62 percent—went for general support of the University. This aid covered a wide variety of projects including faculty research projects, support for student groups and the JMU sports network, and various gifts and awards. A total of $105,432.51 went for general support of the University.

Another 30 percent of the disbursements—$50,946—went for scholarship aid to students. The remaining 8 percent of the Foundation's disbursements went for administering the Foundation's programs and for fund-raising.

Income: $307,849.39

Disbursements: $170,310.53

A Message from the President

President Carrier

It is quite possible for James Madison University to be a very fine institution of higher education operating only with funds it receives from student tuition and fees and from the state government. However, it is not possible for James Madison University to be a truly outstanding institution of higher education with funds only from these sources.

As this Annual Report points out, the University receives only 39 percent of its operating budget from tax funds. The remainder comes from money the students pay, funds the University raises and donations.

It is those voluntary contributions which allow a university to span that gap from adequacy to excellence. We seek true excellence at James Madison University and we can achieve that goal only through your help and that of others who also cherish the University.

This Annual Report serves the purposes of reviewing the past year at JMU and recognizing those who have contributed to the University. I hope your name is among those listed in this report.

Dear Fellow Alumni:

Only a few colleges can say that approximately half of their alumni support their annual giving program. Unfortunately James Madison University is not one of them. How I wish it would be—and it can be—with your help.

During this year which ended June 30, 2,000 alumni are listed to show their support for our Alma Mater. These alumni represent 10.8 percent of our alumni roll and their gifts do help promote the quality at JMU that we all deserve.

As chairman of the 1979-80 Fund Drive I thank each of you who contributed this year.

In closing, may I present our 1980-81 Fund Drive Chairman, Nellie Lantz Long, Class of 1949, and pledge to her my fullest support. I urge each of you to join me, contact Nellie L. Long ('49) of Edinburg has been named to head the 1980-81 Alumni Annual Fund at James Madison University.

The annual drive raises donations for the University from its 20,000 alumni.

A former member of the JMU Board of Visitors, Long served two terms on the board, from 1972 to 1980. Two terms is the maximum a person may serve on the board. She served as alumni liaison for the board.

Long is a member of the Shenandoah County Hospital board executive committee and is active in many other church and civic affairs in Shenandoah County. She is also a member of the board of the Virginia Federation of Republican Women.

Her husband is Homer A. Long ('48).

Where does all that money come from?

The Budget, Taxes and Contributions

State taxes pay to operate James Madison University so why is the University always asking for money?

That's a commonly asked question but there's a major flaw in the question: the premise is wrong. James Madison University is not operated solely by tax funds.

The term "tax-supported" which is used frequently to describe JMU isn't quite correct either. "Tax-aided" would be a better term.

Certainly the University does receive a sizable portion of its budget from state tax funds. The University couldn't continue to operate without these funds.

But tax funds account for only about a third of JMU's budget. The remaining two-thirds comes from student fees, contributions from donors and other funds the University raises itself.

There are two major facts about the University's operation that are not clearly understood by the majority of the general public:

1. Only 39 percent of JMU's operating budget comes from the state. JMU raises 61 percent of its budget.

2. Of the 30 major buildings and facilities constructed at JMU in the past 15 years, only four have been built with tax dollars. The other 26 have been built by money the University raised.

The financial method JMU uses to construct new buildings may be unclear to most people.

Many people driving on Interstate 81 by the JMU campus probably think that the massive number of new buildings visible from the highway were built with their tax money. That's not true.

One easy way of telling which buildings were constructed with tax money and which weren't is this: if the building is red, it was built without tax funds. And there are a lot of red brick buildings at JMU.

The building color actually has nothing to do with the funding for the building. But state tax funds can't be used for dormitories, athletic facilities, student centers or other non-academic buildings. Most of these buildings are made of red brick.

State tax funds can be used only for buildings which are directly used in academic programs. And most of these buildings are gray. (There are also a number of gray buildings constructed without tax funds.)

Funds for those buildings come from a variety of places: student fees, rent students pay, food service charges, funds raised by athletic events, donations and other sources.

Of the buildings constructed at JMU since the mid-60s only four have come totally from state tax funds. They are the Duke Fine Arts Center, the School of Education and Human Services building, Miller Hall and the library addition which is now under construction.

On the other hand, there are 26 buildings and major facilities which have been built in the same period of time without tax funds.

They are: Gibbons Hall, Hoffman Hall, Warren University Union, Grafton-Stovall Theatre, Godwin Hall, Madison Stadium, the Astroturf field, the four complexes for fraternities and sororities, Chandler Hall, Eagle Hall, Shorts Hall, Chapellear Hall, Dingleline Hall, Frederikson Hall, Garber Hall, Hanson Hall, Ikenberry Hall, Huffman Hall, Weaver Hall, White Hall, Long Baseball Field, Mauck Stadium and the indoor athletic-conconvocation center which is under construction.

(Godwin Hall actually could be split between the two lists. Some of Godwin is used for classes so about a fourth of its funding came from tax sources; three-fourths came from non-tax sources.)

Three other major projects planned for the next year—an addition to Madison Stadium, a new dorm and a conference center—will also be constructed without the use of tax funds.

Tax funds are used for only a portion of the buildings constructed at JMU and similarly funds from the state are used for only a portion of the University's operating budget.

The division of tax and non-tax funds is like that used in building construction. Tax funds may be used only for programs directly relating to the academic mission at the University.

However, the state funds only part of the academic programs at the University.

The state uses what is called the "70-30" formula. That means that the state will pay 70 percent of the academic program's costs. Students must pay the other 30 percent.

But all other costs of operating the University—the dorms, food services, the University Union, the athletic program, etc.—must come from the student or from other funds the University can raise.

The end result is that tax funds account for only 39 percent of the University's total operating budget.

Sixty-one percent of the JMU annual budget comes from money that is raised by the University with no help from the taxpayer.

For example, the 1980-82 biennial budget at JMU is about $86.3 million. Of that amount, $33.7 million will come from state tax funds. Non-tax funds will account for $52.6 million.

Clubs For Contributors

To recognize contributors to the James Madison University Foundation, four giving clubs have been established. Club membership is determined by the amount of the donor's contribution made during the July 1-June 30 fiscal year.

Clubs are as follows:
Duke Club — for donors who have given $100 to $499.
Purple and Gold Club — for donors who have given $500 to $999.
President's Club — for donors who have given

$1,000 to $2,499.
Scholarship Club — for donors who have contributed a minimum of $2,500 or more. (Approximately $2,500 is required to provide a full scholarship to JMU.)

Alumni Scholarships Go to Virginia Freshmen

The two new Alumni Scholarships at James Madison University for 1980-81 will go to an entering freshman from

Alexandria and one from Bedford.

Receiving the $500 scholarships will be Deirdre E. Moriarty, daughter of John and Barbara Moriarty of Alexandria, and David A. Whitehurst, son of the Rev. Walter A. and Dr. Betty C. Whitehurst of Bedford.

The scholarships are funded by donations from JMU alumni. The scholarship is renewed each year the student is at JMU and maintains a high academic record.

Moriarty, a graduate of T.C. Williams High School in Alexandria, plans to major in journalism at the University. She was named to Who's Who among American High School Students, was a member of the National Honor Society, a cheerleader and active with the school band, newspaper staff and yearbook staff.

Whitehurst, valedictorian of Liberty High School in Bedford, will major in music or foreign languages at JMU. In high school, he was drum major for the band, president of the Beta Club, senior class vice president and active in cross-country, indoor track and outdoor track.

Students currently attending JMU with alumni scholarships are: sophomores Mark S. Ivanhoe of Roanoke and Laura Woolridge of Virginia Beach; juniors Patti S. Bennett of Lynchburg and Donald M. Scheytt of Oxon Hill, Md.

Alumni Scholarships Go to Virginia Freshmen

The two new Alumni Scholarships at James Madison University for 1980-81 will go to an entering freshman from

Alexandria and one from Bedford.

Receiving the $500 scholarships will be Deirdre E. Moriarty, daughter of John and Barbara Moriarty of Alexandria, and David A. Whitehurst, son of the Rev. Walter A. and Dr. Betty C. Whitehurst of Bedford.

The scholarships are funded by donations from JMU alumni. The scholarship is renewed each year the student is at JMU and maintains a high academic record.

Moriarty, a graduate of T.C. Williams High School in Alexandria, plans to major in journalism at the University. She was named to Who's Who among American High School Students, was a member of the National Honor Society, a cheerleader and active with the school band, newspaper staff and yearbook staff.

Whitehurst, valedictorian of Liberty High School in Bedford, will major in music or foreign languages at JMU. In high school, he was drum major for the band, president of the Beta Club, senior class vice president and active in cross-country, indoor track and outdoor track.

Students currently attending JMU with alumni scholarships are: sophomores Mark S. Ivanhoe of Roanoke and Laura Woolridge of Virginia Beach; juniors Patti S. Bennett of Lynchburg and Donald M. Scheytt of Oxon Hill, Md.

Founders Society: Aid for the Future

The Founders Society at James Madison University has been formed to recognize those friends of the University who have made provisions in their wills for a bequest to the JMU Foundation.

You may join the society by notifying the executive director of the JMU Foundation in writing that you have made a provision in your will for the foundation.

All Founders Society members will receive special invitations to various campus functions and will be recognized at Founders Day activities.

Each member will also receive an appropriate symbol of membership in the society.

Across-the-Board Growth Continues

Have You
Requested
Montpelier
Yet?

Alumni who wish to continue receiving Montpelier, the James Madison University magazine, should be sure to return the form that appeared on the back cover of the last issue of the magazine.

The magazine is sent automatically to all donors to the University and will be sent to any other alumni who request the magazine.

Montpelier is issued three times a year.
